Change the date format to something more human-readable. Using your SQL database data, call `SELECT * FROM CDB where Name = "my_column"` Then, split the result into sections: `SELECT * FROM CDB where Name = "my_column" into tmp1, tmp2, tmp3... tmpN` Finally, call the loops for tmp1, for tmp2, for tmp3... Of course, you will need to decide which sections go to which loops. That should be enough to get you going. Q: Passing a List to a function c# I have a function that takes in a list of List but the function only takes in a list of List How can I get it to take in a list of the first? A: Your function probably just takes a List. That means that whatever the argument passed in has to contain a List and it must therefore be a List. You can of course go the other way round and pass a List: `public void UseListOfLists(List listOfLists) { // loop over each list in the list of lists foreach(List listOfTiles in listOfLists) { // do something with each list of tiles } }` to be one of the brightest regions of the near-infrared sky and is ideally suited for obtaining IR imaging observations. In addition, it is possible to obtain better quality IR observations of the star-forming regions by observing at longer IR wavelengths. Finally, the atmosphere consists mostly of oxygen, which makes the observation of oxygen lines with IR spectrometers easy.
