During that time, we will continue to exist as a subsite of the ASPCA site. We are continuing to update the Boatbuilders Forum but please note that all links to the Forum will need to be changed to point to There are Boatbuilders who are already signed up to petfinder.org and they can just use that site as they already are. But if you are a new user or if you have just signed up or if you are lost already, please use this site. Ok, so what all will be happening that we will need to update to Boatbuilders Forum? Updates and changes to the web site. (Not very complex) Updates and changes to the email address and password sent out via email. (A little more complex) Updates to the forum software to allow the different communities to exist separate from each other. (This will be very involved) Thinking of the old "May the Force be with you" out-sourced emails that went around the pda community a couple years ago. These had a ton of people on the list so any of the pda boards were hit. Perhaps we should set this up for Boatbuilders Forum. Because of what happened two years ago, I want to be sure that we don't do it again. So please, just send a message and we can figure out a way to set this up so that it is open to each and every community.
